BEIRUT, Sept. 9 (NYT)—Heavy firing between Palestinian mandos and Jordanian government troops turned the city of nan into a battlefield today, according to reliable reports ggled from the isolated Jordanian capital, By afternoon, artillery and mortar shells and rockets were hitting ral quarters of the city. Smoke from burning buildings was ale in many sections.

King Hussein broadcast an order this evening authorizing his f of staff, Maj. Gen. Mashur Haditha, to impose a cease-fire bis army. The order appeared to imply that at least some army units had been disobeying commands to observe previous truce agreements reached with the com-mandos.

UN Urges Release Of All Hostages

Jordan apparently have agreed to an extension of their ultimatum expiring early Thursday, reports reaching European capitals indicated. In Bern, Swiss President Ludwig Von Moos told a news conference that "we have every reason to assume that nothing irrevocable will happen after" the deadline.

The West German Foreign Ministry meanwhile reported receiving a message that indicated the guerrillas had put off the deadline.

Vatican Labels Piracies 'Vile'

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 9 (AP). -The Vatican today severely condemned the Palestinian commando hijackings of airplanes as "vile terrorism." It said they "have damaged and compromised the (Middle East) neace initiative in progress."

The condemnation came in an authoritative note on the frout-page of L'Osservatore Romano, the Vatican newspaper, alongside a news story about the hijacking of the BOAC VC-10 today.

Under a beadline saying "Recall to Reason," the note said: "This type of piracy is vile . . . taking advantage of the vulnerability of airplanes and the grave responsibility of pilots to safeguard passengers' lives . . . "The basic portion is a recogni-in of traits that are common to jackers," said Dave Brown, an there were 21 hijackings, of which four were unsuccessful. In the last half of 1969 there were 11 hijackings, three of which were un-successful in the first half of this year there were only eight, three of which falled.

In the same period, piracy on flights originating in other countries increased from 13 in the first half of 1969 to 24 in the second half and 19 in the first half of

Other Factors

The FAA does not claim that the preventive measures alone are responsible for the drop in hijack-

"We think the system had a part," Mr. Brown said, "but there are other facts, Fidel Castro hasn't welcomed hijackers warmly to Cuba. We've gotten back most of the hijackers other than foreigners and Latin types. Most of them have gone to trial and been convicted with penalties that have ranged from probation for a juvenile to sentences of 20 and 25 years.

One guy got life. "We know Eastern Air Lines alone has denied boarding to more than two dozen people who then were charged with a variety of crimes. They ranged from carrying concealed weapons to transporting narcotics. Interestingly, narcotics runners seem to fit the mold."

When Khrushchev and De Gaulle Broke Their Language Barrier

By John Vinocur PARIS, Sept. 9 (AP).-Gen. Charles de Gaulle and Nikita S. Khrushchev sat side by side in a rowboat singing the "Song of the Volga Boatmen' at the top of their voices.

When it came time to go ashore, Gen. de Gaulle stumbled and found bimself with one foot on the dock and the other in the boat. He grabbed Mr. Khrushchev's neck and just avoided falling into the water.

The incident took place on April 2, 1960, at Gen. de Gaulle's hunting lodge during an official visit by the Soviet party chief during the great East-West thaw of a decade ago. Pierre-Viansson-Ponte, political editor of Le Monde, recounts it in a book of the Monde, recounts it in a book called "La France Gaullienne" that was issued today. The men whom Mr. Viansson-

Ponte describes as the Sancho Panza of the Volga and the Don Quixote of the Seine broke into song because they were in the boat without interpreters and reduced to nodding, smiling and

"Mr. K. got bored," Mr. Vians son-Ponte wrote. "He hummed the tune of The Volga Boat-men. The general knew it and he took up the chorus. From the shore, cabinet ministers saw the Russian encouraging his neighbor, getting their singing in rhythm and raising his voice. The side de camp rowed in

In an interview with the As Ponte said that Gen, de Gaulle was personally disappointed by his meeting with Mr. Khrushehev, not only because it did not mark the end of the cold war, but because the general found that his Cartesian logic and subtle language went over the Soviet leader's head. "He found Khrushchev amusing and even picturesque, but not really a serious man. It was isappointment for the general," the author said.

The book offers these remarks by Gen. de Gaulle on Russian

During the Khrushchev visit in the spring of 1960.

Lenin. But. no! You discover Gogol and Taras Bulba. I don't leaders: "Stalin, that's Dostoevski; Khrushchev, that's Gogol. You scratch a little and you know if Khrushchev's successo will be Marxist-Leninist. Maoist. think you'll find Marx and

All that I can say for sure is that he'll he Russian."

Mr. Viansson-Ponte also writes that No. Khrushchev warned Gen, de Gaulle that if the United States started an atomie war we'll destroy everything, the United States, Great Britain-I don't even want to talk about

The general replied. "We know who would be the winner. It would be China.

"Yes, that's right," Mr. Khrushehev said.

Mr. Viansson-Ponte, one of the country's most highly re-garded journalists, explained that he gathered his de Gaulle stori. "over the years, from people in the Elysée, from people who were part of his court, so to speak. They're all carefully verified. I've sent a dedicated copy to the general and I don't think there's anything in it he can catch me on. I don't think he'll be indignant. In fact, I think he'll like it."

The author also talked in the interview about Gen. de Gaulle's impressions of John F. Kennedy. "I think people knew that the general did not have the hest impression of him at first, and then grew to have great respect

Mr. Viausson-Ponte confirmed a story heard many times in Paris about Gen. de Gaulle's comments on Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis

"Malraux (André Malraux, the writer and Gen. de Gaulle's minister of culture] was in the plane going back to France from the funeral and he told me he remarked to the general how dignified Jackie was," Mr. Viansson-Ponte said.

"De Gaulle listened and then said: 'Bah, She'll finish up on some oilman's yacht.'"

Portions of the book to be published by Fayard in France, appeared in Le Nouvel Obser-vateur. An American edition will be published by Houghton Mifflin of Boston, the author said

What makes a financial company great?

A Great Concept... A Great Management Team with proven performance... A Great Sales Force of thousands... Great Investors Confidence throughout the world...

A year ago, International Investors Group announced a revolutionary concept to the investment industry. IIG Associates would offer shares of The Real Estate Fund of America without sales charges to the client. The fund would construct and purchase prime, incomeproducing hotels, apartment complexes and shopping centers throughout the world. Associates would be paid from management profits, not from the clients' investments.

In a few months, IIG had attracted a great sales force—enthusiastic, professional financial counsellors-to bring this concept to international investors. Their enthusiasm was understandable. They knew investors were searching for a safe, profitable investment, free from stock market fluctuations. An investment without sales charges on all capital accounts. Shares in The Real Estate Fund of America were easy to sell. IIG Associates earned the highest nonreducing commissions and other lasting benefits.

The Fund was even easier to sell as time went on. With a great management team supervising the Fund, managed assets grew to over $100 million within a year. Each property in the portfolio was a classic example of prime, income-producing real estate.

Great performance produces great confidence. Investors all over the world saw their share values grow dramatically when most securities markets were in a complete decline. The Real Estate Fund of America's remarkable growth was built on solid, enduring financial foundations.

One year ago, all this was only a concept. Add to that concept a great sales force, expert management and investor confidence, and you end up with a great financial company.

Like all great financial companies, HG will grow as it continues to satisfy an ever-increasing number of clients and Associates. Next year's plans include a network of hotels around the world. An insurance company. New Training Academies producing thousands more professional financial counsellors. A series of national investment companies world-wide. New banks for IIG's Banking Group. An unprecedented growth in managed assets. Thousands of new clients and Associates. Another great year for a great financial company.

sands of the Jordanian desert is international blackmail in its basest form. The lives of scores of innocent people have been put on the auction block by a gang of vicious, desperate outlaws. What these gangsters expect to gain from this deadly exercise in ransom and threat is a renewal of the Arab-Israeli war; there is no place for rabid fanatics in a peaceful settlement. By raising their demands to include the release of 3,000 guerrillas held captive in Israel, the Palestine "liberators" made clear their purpose of increasing the pressure on the Israeli government to break the cease-fire, either before or after the ransom deadline runs

The negotiations to release the hostages are so delicate now that no useful purpose would be served by public comment on them. Only those in close contact with them can judge the temper of the kidnapers. Those who are making that judgment for the Western nations now being blackmailed are entitled to proceed as best they can without a background of noisy advice. We only hope that in this, as in any other kidnaping, they choose wisely among the few courses of action open.

It is possible, however, to begin to plan ahead in hopes that the nations of the world can take some immediate steps to prevent any repetition of this tragic affair. The world cannot tolerate a threat of this kind to international air travel—a threat in which innocent people are pawns in a deadly international power play. There have been long negotiations and much talk in many national capitals since the wave of airplane hijackings broke out many months ago but very little concerted action. The massive dose of criminal activity ought to convince every nation that this ootrage has gone on long enough.

The United States, in our view, should

The grim drama being played out on the seize the initiative in this situation by ordering this country's airlines to suspend all service to and from any nation that welcomes hijackers, that treats hijacking as a minor offense, or that is unable to prevent its citizens from engaging in hijacking. At the same time, the government should deny landing rights in this country to any airline that serves such nations. This action should be taken, not so much as an economic sanction against offending nations although there would be significant economic effects-but as a simple safety measure designed to protect American citizens.

> There may be legal red tape in such a unilateral approach; international treaties governing landing rights and so on are complex affairs. But this should not be allowed to stand in the way. For one thing, surely most other civilized nations would join in such a ban since it would place the responsibility for hijacking squarely where it belongs—on those governments which have treated it as a game and which have encouraged it by throwing welcoming parties for the pirates. Even if other nations did not join immediately, the United States should take the first step since its prime responsibility in this situation is the safety of its citizens and of those citizens of other countries who travel on American air car-

The airlines themselves can help by strengthening their security measures, although the fact that the would-be pirates got aboard an El Al plane last Sunday indicates that even Israel's relatively strict precautionary measures are far from foolproof. It may be that for a while international travelers will have to undergo the kind of scrutiny now given to visitors of prison inmates. difference would my congressman make?" There's a lot of common sense in the popular grumbling. Lots of people see poverty as a virulent, infections disease and as a rebuke to the wealth and ideals of the nation. No doubt they would like to have a government which would provide for the needs of its people in the order of their importance, but they simply doubt their capacity to do anything about the disorder they deplore.

Part of this, paradexically, is that many people seem to be stunned by the torrent of contradictory information that hits them every hour of the day from the radio. the television, and the newspapers. The discovery is a surprise because it contradicts the belief held in some Western quarters that a creeping liberalism is gradually overtaking the Soviet Union. What is gone, to be sure, is the hostility and suspicion shown toward Americans and other foreign-: ers during the dark age of Stalinism. Even so, the enlightenment seems a long way off.

This is not to say that Russians are unfamiliar with the U.S. scene. On the contrary, they can identify members of the Nixon cabinet as well as Sen. Fulbright, the astronauts, George Wallace and the Black Panthers. How many Americans, in contrast, can name the Soviet President? But if Americans are ignorant about the Soviet Union, they are at least discarding the cold war cliches that once characterized their attitude toward Russia. The Russians, however, have yet to shuck off the stereotypes of the past.

As a consequence, though his Soviet hosts could not be more affable, the American traveler here repeatedly finds himself locked into conversations made hopelessly frustrating by the wildest kinds of dogmatic misinformation.

An attempt to explain the deportation of one prominent Chinese scientist in the mid-1950s as a blunder by the FBI evoked a response that would have delighted J. Edgar Hoover. "Come now," the Russian editor said, "the FET doesn't make mistakes."

The big do's start tomorrow with the premiere of Johnny Hallyday's film, "Point de Chute." Then the younger Tou Paris set is getting ready for Johnny's wife, Sylvie Vartan, to appear at the Olympia later this month. Sylvie has had time to take dancing lessons in New York while undergoing plastic surgery (she had a car accident last spring) and she is supposed to be terrific.

The ball of the month will be given for the Recherche Medicale Française at the Foire des Antiquaires on Oct. 5, with 2,000 people and Mrs. Pompidou pre-siding. That is probably why she quietly ducked into Cardin's

$3.2 Million Bid for Queen Elizabeth, Liner May Carry Passengers Again FORT LAUDERDALE; Fis., Sept. 9 (Reuters).-A New York

Elizabeth within five minutes of the start of bidding on the liner at a hotel here. It was the highest bid, although an Italian firm had offered a shipping firm today bid $3.2 million for the 83,000-ton Queen pre-auction price of $3.4 million. Ralph Louring, representing the shipping firm of Thor Eckert and Co., said the firm planned to use the Queen Eizabeth to carry passengers again. It could not be immediately determined how the liner would be put to use. However, Mr. Louring said it might be used as a floating university—"a kind of United Nations University."

The Queen Elizabeth once carried the cream of world society back and forth across the Atlantic.

the bid follows nearly two years of complicated financial dealing and political squabbling—including the original idea of berthing the ship in Philadelphia as a visitors attraction.

It appears that Thor Eckert's bid could save the 32-year-old former monarch of the seas from the scrap heap. But hids in the two-day auction can still be made to buy separate sections of the liner—including the hull and the elegant furnishings. If these should exceed the Thor Eckert bid, the Queen Elizabeth will be broken up and sold piecemeal.

PARTS, Sept. 9.—The French government, expecting the nation's supply side.

The rally was non-stop from the opening beil, perhaps kicked off by normal weekly technical factors which usually boost the pound a bit on Wednesdays.

For the longer term, however, the outlook is not yet quite so clear. In approving next year's budget, the government today estimated it would collect 125 million transs ($22.52 million) more than it spends in 1971—even though its cupenditures are going to increase 8.74 percent.

The projected surplus, the second in a row, reflects the government's continuing concern with inflation.

More spending on the govern-ment's part, it is felt, would tend to overheat the economy, putting upward pressure on prices.

The spending increase, Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing told a press conference this after-noon, will be less than the 8.9 per-cent gain expected in the total value of all the goods and services produced in the nation-based on Dumping Action

"Mexico has enjoyed one of the highest rates of economic growth in the world in recent years," says a 1968 U.S. Commerce Department Study. Why? Because here's one of the world's most stable currencies. Because qualified experts call Mexico "the standout example of responsible government and business in Latin America." Because there's a controlled economic explosion going on in Mexico in industry, public works, consumer goods, international trade - which has created a true "investor's market" with a yield which invites comparison anywhere in the world. the recent summer nationals of the American Contract Bridge League in Boston, South adopted a bidding sequence that can be interpreted in three ways.

A Stayman response of two clubs to one no-trump followed by three clubs can be, accord-ing to partnership agreement, a weak sign-off bid, a forcing bid, or an encouraging bid that can be passed.

On the diagramed deal from

In this case, the partnership had agreed on the intermediate interpretation. North's hand was suitable to accept the game invitation, and she judged that this was one of the rare hands on which a minor-suit game is preferable to no-trump after a no-trump opening hid.

The opening lead was the spade eight, and South won with the ace in dummy. She cashed two top diamonds, discarding hearts from her hand, and ruffed a diamond. She cashed the spade king, ruffed a spade and ruffed another diamond to produce this position:

THE REAL MAJORITY

An Extraordinary Examination of the American Electorate.

By Richard M. Scammon and Ben J. Wattenberg. Comard. McCann. $47 pp. $7.95.

Reviewed by John Chancellor

RICHARD M. SCAMMON and constitute 11 percent of the population, but in 1968 cast only produced a wickedly intelligent analysis of the American voter which should make Richard Nixon uneasy, enrage the hipsters of the new politics, and possibly persuade John Lindsay to become a middle-of-the-road Democrat.

Scammon, the former Director of the U.S. Census, is a professional elections expert, and Wattenberg is a writer who used to be on President John-son's staff. Scammon's reputation as a political sage is justly based on his unbending belief that figures don't lie. Out of the statistical tables, the election results, the polls and census bureau reports Scammon has put together a set of facts that puncture some fashionable no-

His fundamental argument is that social conditions have now presented the American voter with a decisively important issue: as decisive as the depression of 1893, which brought Mc-Kinley into the White House and created the Golden Age of Republicanism; as decisive as the Great Depression of 1931 which put Roosevelt into the White House and made the middle years of the century largely Democratic years.

The new condition, which Scammon believes will have a "tidal" effect politically, he defines not as an economic issue but rather as a "social issue" which embraces "radical problems, crime as an issue, student disruption, pot, pornography, morals, school integration and raucous dissent." And unless there is another quite serious depression Americans will vote for candidates who understand the potency of the social issue. They are already doing so, and election results prove it.

Moreover according to Scam-mon, neither party has yet dealt with the social issue successfully, and in terms of party identification (upon which dec-ades of power might be based)

it is all still up for grabs.

But he believes that the victory will go only to politicians of the center, Extremism—Right or Left—is out, and the most powerful arguments in the book are marshaled to support that thesis. The authors, who are self-styled "independent Demo-crats," say they might welcome a move by Nixon to embrace the Southern strategy, since it would win the next election for the Democrats; but they think it a disaster to "talk of forming a new coalition of the left, composed of the young, the black, the poor, the well-educated, the socially allenated, minority groups, and intellectuals—while relegating Middle America and the ranks of 'racists.' "

The young, voters under thirty, cast only 17 percent of the vote in 1968, as opposed to 68 percent cast by those be-tween thirty and sixty-four. When young people did vote (only one out of every three eligible did) more of them were hawks on the war than doves, according to George Gallup. The blacks, some of whem are young, population, but in 1968 cast only 9 percent of the vote. The poor -meaning $5,000 a year per family-will cast only about 15 percent of the vote in 1972; and in 1968, says Scammon, of the dozen poorest states in the nation, six went for Nixon, five went for Wallace, and only one for Humphrey. The richest state, Connecticut, went Demo-cratic." No: It can't be done by putting together brave bands of the alienated, poor and deprived, because there are simply not enough votes there to win anything. The average age of the Amer. ican voter is forty-seven; the average annual family income is $8,622; the average voter is white and Protestant and shaken to the bone about crime race, morals—the social issue And the party which under stands this and uses it, says Scammon, can rule the roost for a long time to come.

For the Republicans, his advice is to stay strictly in the center; if Nixon is the candidate in 1972, however, and the Dem. ocrats nominate a moderate, the contest might just be decided on the basis of a candidate's personality, especially his televised personality.

Scammon advises the Demo-erats to rid their party of the image that it is the "champion of the blacks," since that puts them on the wrong side of the social issue. Anyway, if the race problem were solved tomorrow. all the other problems making up the social issue would still be there. He also urges Democrats to hit hard on crime and stress law and order, which is now a non-negotiable demand of the American electorate. Finally, he advocates a candidate for 1972 from the moderate center of the party, for only with such a candidate can the presidency be won Pitying the Panthers is suicide. And of John Lindsay. he says: "If Lindsay's 1969 vote in New York were projected on a national cauvass . . . it is doubtful that he would poll as well as Barry Goldwater in 1964. Should John Lindsay switch his party allegiance to the Democrats, be nominated for President in 1972, and be perceived by the voters nationwide as he was in 1969 in New York City, he would lose massively to centrist Richard Nixon or any other middle-of-the-road Republican."

Yet Scammon thinks Lindsay has a future if he can head back into the center.

Which is the message of this book: The center is where it's at, baby, however brutal those statistics may be. Scammon's charts show that the voters have not said. "turn back the clock" or ."down with progress" or "hate" but they are seized by the social issue, and the party which best understands that wins the ball game for the

Lombardi Gave, Asked for Best

By Robert Lipsyte

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (NYT).—He had etationed himself on the small stone balcony of his Florida motel suite, scotch in hand, back to the pounding ocean surf, and he was smiling upon the men and women he had invited up for 5 p.m. cocktails, a routine event before the 1968 Super Bowl he seemed to enjoy. Some latecomers made their way to the balcony, and when the conversation faltered. Vince Lombardi said: "A northeast wind." He tilted his head to study the clouds. "I think that's going to be bad. A northeast wind means three days of bad weather."

"Coach, you know everything," a man said. The big chest swelled slightly under a white knit sports shirt. "When you are brought up near the ocean, you get to know things like that." Lombardi said. He turned to one of the latecomers. "You live near the ocean?" "No, I live in New York."

"Well, where do you think New York is?" snapped Lombardi. "That's right on the ocean." "Not really." blurted the latecomer, feeling. skewered by the widening Lombardi smile and the sharpening stare, "the buildings change the

"Naaaah," said Lombardi, "New York's right on the ocean; everybody knows New York'e right on the ocean."

Lombardi was not a comfortable person to be with for those who did not know him well. He did not tolerate carelessness in conversation any more than he tolerated it in the appearance or attitude or performance of his players. It has been written, with truth, that he was considerably more genial to those bringing him television money and commercial endorsements than to those bringing him questions. But there is no moral inconsistency in this, and certainly a lot of eense.

Men and women who knew that their hair or clothes did not fulfill the man's conservative standards felt uneasy before him, not only because of the cold way his eyes flicked over them, but because he made them feel somehow softer and shallower. The single, overwhelming power of Lombardi was that he caused certain people to seek his approval.

Since his death last Thursday, there have been a great number of private and public tributes, and very few of them have been mawkish in tone. The best of them, such as Howard Cosell's extraordinary special on the American Broadcasting Company network, have emphasized the strength that Lombardi himself derived from his faith in the sustaining values of religion, family and challenging work.

Lombardi himself once said, "The answer today seems to he to take things easy. The prevailing sentiment is, if you don't like the rule, break it. I believe freedom has been idealized against order."

His philosophy was criticized in his lifetime by those who felt it not only had no application beyond football, but made football a joyless experience as well. Yet the statistics of his success—and in professional football, at least, winning should be the only thing—and the testimony of players thrilled to learn they were better than they thought they were, secured Lomhardi's reputation as one of the game's finest coaches

But Lombardi's players did not disregard their injuries and search for new levels of energy and push themselves to be working parts of his whole merely because they were afraid of him or because they were proselvtized by his slogans. They hied for Lombardi because he promised them the opportunity to be the best, and because he showed that he had the capa bility of leading them to success. With the same personality and a lesser intelligence. Lombardi would never have been able to tell men that they had better be "fired with enthu-siasm or you'll be fired with enthusiasm." They would have dogged it in their grass drills and been happy to be traded away. Lombardi dld not demand purposeless obedience to inflate his ego or impose discipline for control or attack those who disagreed with him because he felt fearful. He demanded and imposed and attacked hecause it was part of his vision for success, and it all worked only hecause he came to his people offering them

Foreign Horses Grab French Purses

By James Brown

PARIS, Sept. 9 (NYT) .- The Prench racing industry is suffering from a heavy "balance of purses" deficit that has raised a cry for protectionist meas-ures against horses from abroad running in this country.

Since the beginning of this year, foreign owners have won nearly $600,000 on the French turf. In 1969, the figure was more than $800,000 out of a total allocation of $22 million for all races in 1969, including prizes of bonnses for breeders. French horses have won back only a fraction of these losses abroad. David Robinson's Irish colt, My Swallow, has already won the two top tests this year for two-year-olds—the Prix Robert Papin and the Prix Morny, My Swallow was sired by Seamus McGrath's Irish stallion, Le Levanstell, who also sired Lev-moss, winner of the French Gold Cup and the Arc de Triomphe last year. A sister of Leymoss, Sweet Mimos tured the French Oaks this year. French breeding suffered another blow last Sunday when a German mare, Schonbrunn, Deaoville, Although she carried the colors of a French owner, Daniel Wildenstein, the mare was little thought of in France and went off at almost 18-1. She beat a good group of French colts as well as Robinson's Meadowville, the favorite. Who had finished second to or the defeats. The foreign owner is likely to use the money to buy horses in his country, and the winners probably will breed in their owner's country. And thus, the worth of French yearlings on the market will, of course, decline. The situation is made more serious by the fact that there is also strong support in British racing for some French protectionist steps. Racing cards in Britain have suffered as the hest thoroughbreds have been flown to France in pursuit of the bigger purses.

Prizes in France are often ten times larger than those for comparable races in England. This year, for example, the Eclipse Stakes in Britain had only three starters. By contrast, the fields in the rich handicap races in France have grown so big that the Jockey Association has filed a protest at Deauville. Trainers now draw lots to keep fields to a maximum of 20 horses. British track owners are also being hurt by the migration of their star jockeys, such as Lester Piggott and Bill Williamson. Piggott, one of the biggest draws in the business, sometimes rides more often in France during a week than in England. There is a note of xenophobia in the attitude of many French owners and breeders. They hate to be beaten and they es-

Nijinsky to Run In St. Leger

LONDON, Sept. 9 (AP).— American owner Charles Engelhard yesterday entered his super horse, Nijinsky, in Satur-day's St. Leger Classic in Doncaster, England.

The race, last and oldest of the English Classics, is I 3/4 miles, plus 132 yards, and will be a furlong more than the undefeated colt has traveled The son of Native Dancer, who will be going for his 11th straight, was recently syndicated for stud duty for a record $5.4-million

Nijinsky will be ridden by jockey Lester Piggott and some British bookies have quoted the horse's odds at 1 to 4.

steward, has stated: "There is pecially hate to be beaten consistently by the English and Irish on their own turf. Most other European countries disno question in 1970 of considercriminate against foreign horses and have mediocre racing as a

There is an frony in this Prench attitude since they so often dominated the British classics during the last 25 years with such horses as Relko and Seabird. But the English learned from this expe-rience. They bought good French stallions and mares and this helped to weaken the French position. But in spite of the clamor to bar foreign horses in France, Count Decazes, a Jockey Club ing racing as a purely national activity. The rule of free com-petition must be accepted." Earlier in August, Minister of Agriculture Jacques Duhamel announced that prize money in 1971 would be increased by 10 percent, This was done to give encouragement to French breeders, hut it will also act as an even greater attraction across the Channel. And with Nijinsky a veritable "chateau"—roughly a "sure thing" in French racing slang— to win the Arc de Triomphe in October, the pressure to bar foreign horses from France will gain more incentive.

Downhill Skiers to Benefit By Rule Changes of FIS

GENEVA, Sept. 9 (AP).—The Sources at the meeting said International Ski Federation there was criticism that last (FIS) announced today changes in the rules of the Alpine World Cup competition to the benefit of downhill specialists.

At a meeting here, FIS decided to stage seven downhills, eight giant alaloms and nins special slaloms counting for the World Cup, in the forthcoming season which will start at Sestriere, Italy, Dec. 12.

The PIS also decided that in the future, downhills canceled hecause of had conditions will not be replaced by giant slaloms, as in the past. Last season there were six downhills, 11 glant and 11 special slaloms for men and 5, 9 and 12 respectively for the Women. Marc Hodler, president of the FIS, said it was felt that past competitions were too favorable to the slalomers.

solved. If the plan is adopted and is successful. there is no Buchwald reason why divorce insurance in the United States would net become a big thing.

This is now it might work. An insurance agent fer the Niagara Falls Marriage Casualty and Life Insurance Ce. weuld scan the engagement netices ef his local newspaper. Then he would select a likely prospect, perhaps Miss Mary Philpott ef Roxbury, Cenn., who has just anneunced her engagement to Mr. Seymeur Rocks ef Philadelphia.

The agent would call on Miss Philpott with a bouquet of red

"Miss Philpott, I read in the newspaper this morning that you are going to marry Mr. Seymeur Rocks, and I wish to effer my heartiest congratulations."

"Oh, thank you. I'm so happy, I'm flying. Who did you say you were?"

"Nate Bienstock of the Niagara Falls Marriage Casualty and Life Insurance Co.," he says, handing her his card. Miss Philpott says, Thank you very much, but I don't need sny life insurance." "I'm not selling life insurance,

Braving the Belgians on the Road

By Donald Wayne

BRUSSELS-Ask any tourist who are the worst drivers in Europe, and chances are he will regale you with anecdotes about the French or the Italians, and possibly the Germans,

But any seasoned observer can tell you in a flash who the real champions are: the Belgians.

An informal survey of long-term American residents in Europe discloses that Belgian drivers are the most feared and unpredictable, and that Belgium itself, with less than 12,00 square miles, is regarded as a "hell on wheels."

The term "hrave little Belgium." carned during the World War I, is now being applied with some irony. Beigium is indeed little. But honors for bravery should perhaps go to the pedestrians whe sally forth amid the cars, which are playing the daily game of Dodgem that characterizes the normal traffic situation in major cities like Brussels, Antwerp, Liège and Ghent.

600 Accidents Daily

For a country of just under 10 millien, the tally for accidents and driving offenses is appalling. An average of 600 road mishaps a day are reported to the police with estimated hundreds more unreported because they are too small to be covered by insurance.

Last year about 80,000 road casualties were clocked in this little kingdom which has as many vehicles as it has telephones or TV receivers-well over 2 million. And accident figures for 1970 show a 15 percent rise.

"The plain fact is, they don't know how to drive," explained a long-time Brussels resident, who also pointed out that most Belgians behind the wheel have never had to pass a driver's test.

This is because prior to 1969 a Belgian driving license could be had for the asking. Whole families often applied, even those who did not know how to drive. As a result, most Belgian drivers have never been tested, and many non-drivers walk around with valid licenses, making it perfectly legal to operate a car whenever they have a mind to. A Belgian driving license is permanent.

Since 1969, new drivers have had to pass a road test, as well as an oral exam on the highway code. But the question possibly testing nearly three million holders of old licenses isn't even heing considered. "Completely impractical," say officials.

'The way to judge Europe's worst drivers is to look at the number of dented cars. Belgium has the most . . . ?

On the route from Bruges.

Americans here are aghast at some of the antics they see in everyday traffic. Speeding and illegal passing are "things you get used to" and are nothing compared to practices like sudden U-turns in heavy traffic, tailgating and passing a car which is passing another car. favorite pastime is counting the holes made by cars crashing into the walls of the Brussels traffic tunnels. "There are new ones all the time," an observer noted.

One American here was fascinated by a funeral procession trying to keep up with the speeding hearse that cut in and out of traffic, black plumes flying.

In another instance, an ambulance hurrying to pick up an emergency case had a head-on collision. A second ambulance sent to replace it also had an accident, and the patient, a heart case, had to be transferred to a taxicab to complete the trip to the hospital. The taxi made it.

"The way to judge Europe's worst drivers is to look at the number of dented cars. Belgium has the most, though it's all relative," commented another American resident, an oil company executive who does a lot of traveling. At least, his money is on Belgium, he said. The carrosseries, the body repair shops, have a three months' waiting list.

All sorts of surprises occur. One driver stopping for a traffic light overshot the crossing and was waved back by the police. He admitted he didn't know how to put his car in reverse. A driver caused a four-car accident near Namur when he changed his mind in the middle of making a left turn. "I meant to turn right," he told police, "and they all started crowding me,"

Ignorance Blamed

"There's a highway code, but nobody really knows it," an American business-man said. "A lot of bad driving is due to ignorance," he added. Another criticism of Belgian drivers is that they're discourteous and "always trying to be

A rule of thumb is that any car driven in Brussels for a year and a half is bound to be involved in at least one accident. Mishaps are so common that police handle them with enviable efficiency. "They're practiced," is the usual wry comment. Whatever the seriousness of the accident, the police get it off the street often in a matter of minutes and have traffic moving again,

Road fatalities seem surprisingly low, but this may be because only deaths that occur at the scene of the accident are recorded. An accident victim whe dies in hospital or even en route is listed irrevocably as "injured."

Eventually, Belgium's untested drivers will die off, one way or another, and the . future is not altogether bleak. Officials are studying a system of classifying drivers by a point system based on their performance records. Such a system could help "brave little Belgium" regain face in the European driving picture.

Meanwhile the remark of a German motorist will continue to be the motto ef many a European driver: "When I see that B' sticker on the backside of a car, I give it a wide berth."
